A one day workshop titled “Exploring Gray’s School of Art at Robert Gordon University: Programmes, Facilities and Global Opportunities” was organized by the Avinashilingam Center for International Education and Department of Textiles and Clothing in collaboration with global reach.. The main objective of the session was to provide students with information about higher education opportunities, international exposure, and advanced study options in the field of fashion and textiles.

During the workshop, the representatives from Robert Gordon University explained the advantages and facilities available at their university. They highlighted the positive learning environment, well-equipped infrastructure, advanced resources, and academic support systems provided to students. Special emphasis was given to the opportunities available for students in the field of textiles and apparel design.

The speakers also provided detailed information about the various postgraduate courses offered at Robert Gordon University. They explained the master's programs available for students who wish to pursue higher studies, as well as research opportunities for postgraduate candidates. The session helped students understand the academic structure, course content, and career prospects associated with studying abroad.

The workshop was highly interactive, allowing students to ask questions and clarify their doubts regarding admissions, course eligibility, facilities, and future opportunities. The discussion provided valuable orientation about international education standards and the benefits of pursuing advanced studies in a globally recognized institution.

Overall, the session was informative and beneficial. It broadened the students' understanding of global academic opportunities and motivated them to explore higher education options in the field of Textiles and Apparel Designing. The workshop successfully created awareness about the courses and career prospects available at Robert Gordon University.
